REAPING RIBBONS

THE SECRETS OF AWARD-WINNING SCHOOLS

FALL 2018 | ANNUAL REPORT EDITION

A message from the CHIEF ADMINISTRATOR

Dear friends,

In early June, The Wall Street Journal published an opinion article entitled "The Catholic School Difference," which highlighted a recent University of California-Santa Barbara study comparing the behaviors of students in Catholic with those in public and other private schools. The study's researchers presented "statistically meaningful evidence" that Catholic school students exhibited less disruptive behavior than their counterparts in other schools. In addition, these students "were more likely to control their temper, respect others' property, accept their fellow students' ideas, and handle peer pressure." In short, the study showed it's possible to instill self-discipline in students and that self-discipline is a key factor in students' academic success.

Shortly after that article was published, a graduate from Wahlert's early years shared a letter his parents received regarding his self-discipline from Dean of Boys Rev. John R. McClean. That communication, sent in 1968, opens with a priceless line: "Mindful of our position as guides of your son during the hours you entrust him to our care, we feel confident that you wish to hear from us regarding his progress in achieving self-discipline." As you can imagine, the receipt of the letter caused the application of no small amount of discipline by the boy's parents.

Those of us who attended Catholic schools or have worked in them understand well the value of this instilling of self-discipline. Though discipline systems and parenting styles are very different today than they were in the early days of Wahlert, the value of setting the bar high for students so they can achieve more than they ever thought possible remains. While the UC-Santa Barbara study focuses on behavior, we see the fruits of self-discipline in our students' academic achievement as well.

Through our adoption of Personalized Learning, self-discipline and similar skills are embedded in the learning and intentionally taught by our teachers. There's a focus on the 16 Habits of Success, including self-regulation, resilience, agency and academic tenacity, and weekly 1:1 meetings with a teacher mentor ensure students are developing these skills that will lead to life-long success.

In this issue, you'll read about the national ribbons our schools have earned, including St. Columbkille's Green Ribbon for environmental protection activities and Resurrection's second Blue Ribbon for being an exemplary high-performing school. St. Columbkille is Iowa's only Green Ribbon winner and Resurrection is one of 49 non-public Blue Ribbon winners from across the United States. This recognition at the national level validates our emphasis on high expectations and, yes, students' self-discipline.

Sincerely,

Carol (Schmidt) Trueg '79

ELLIE KIRBY '22 SHARES HER TAKE ON PERSONALIZED LEARNING.

"Personalized learning allows you to learn at your pace and in the way that's best for you. It's really for anybody. Sometimes, I struggle in school, and personalized learning is awesome for me. Last year, if I didn't understand a math concept, it might be, 'we're moving on. I can help you after class.' Now, if I don't understand something I get help from my teacher and extra time in class until I do understand it. Also, if I do understand something right away, I can possibly move on a lot faster instead of waiting for everyone else to understand."

ALUMNI WORTH KNOWING Spotlight

Aaron Behnke '08

AARON IS THE VOCAL MUSIC TEACHER AT WAHLERT CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL. HE HAS TAKEN THE CHOIR TO ROME TO PERFORM AT A PAPAL MASS AND IS PREPARING TO HOST WAHLERT'S FIRST HOME SHOW CHOIR COMPETITION.

Q: Tell us a little bit about yourself.
A: After graduating from Wahlert Catholic in 2008, I attended the University of St. Thomas and graduated with a degree in Vocal Music Education. I came right back to Wahlert to begin my teaching career in 2012. I was very excited to rejoin a community that I loved as a student, where I was involved in football, theater, show choir, and a number of other clubs and organizations. It's been a blast to come back and be a part of those same activities now as a teacher. I am currently in my seventh year teaching, helping to run everything related to vocal music here at Wahlert.

Q: What led you to this career path?
A: Despite being involved in the arts in high school, I had no intention of going into music in college. I knew I wanted to work with youth and teens in some way, but it was thanks to some guidance from my collegiate professors that I made the connection to music.

Q: What is the most rewarding part about your work with students?
A: Our students impress me every single day. They are so creative and offer so much to the world around them. The best part of my job is seeing students take pride in their accomplishments.

Q: What have you carried with you from your Wahlert Catholic High School years?
A: The character demonstrated by my teachers and classmates and the values I learned are what I hold dear about Wahlert Catholic. While I don't remember all of my curriculum, the drama, or all the ups and downs, I remember the people I met and I've learned how important it is to form and treasure relationships. The community at Wahlert is like no other, and when you are surrounded by people who celebrate being part of that community, there is no better sense of belonging.

Q: The arts are alive at Wahlert – what have you had to do with that?
A: I was very fortunate to inherit a strong program in which I participated in high school. Show Choir at Wahlert is one of the most rewarding and exciting programs that I am involved with – I am proud to say it has grown to become the single largest activity in the school!

I feel blessed that our students are so committed to the program and to each other. That sense of ownership has helped turn show choir into something truly valuable. Since show choir is judged only as a group performance, it promotes teamwork and reminds us that we are more successful as a group when we support each other's successes as individuals.

I'm excited to say that this year will be a game-changer for Wahlert Show Choir. We will be hosting our first-ever show choir competition on February 2, 2019. So far, 13 teams have signed up from nine schools all across the Midwest! Not only will this event bring Wahlert more exposure (and potentially bring thousands of guests into our beautifully renovated school!), it is also a tremendous fundraising opportunity that will help sustain the program for years to come. It's an exciting time for this program, but to do something this big, we'll need plenty of help. I welcome anyone interested in getting involved to contact me at abehnke@holyfamilydbq.org. Thanks! – Aaron

THE SECRETS OF AWARD-WINNING SCHOOLS

It doesn't take long to scan through the list of 2018 National Blue Ribbon schools in Iowa. There are six. And one of them is Resurrection Elementary School. The list gets even shorter when you recognize Resurrection was the single private school in Iowa to garner this prestige.

Meanwhile, another esteemed list of one includes St. Columbkille Elementary. This time, for a different colored ribbon. For their commitment to holistic environmental awareness, St. Columbkille has been awarded the 2018 Department of Education Green Ribbon Schools award – the only Iowa school to earn the distinction.

The students, staff and faculty of Holy Family schools – though humbled by the recognition – are no strangers to this type of praise. Both Resurrection and St. Columbkille have been named Blue Ribbon Schools before, in 2009 and 2011, respectively.

The list of accolades goes on, but for now, we'll focus on the two school communities that have most recently pinned feathers into their caps and shed some light on the secrets of our award-winning schools.

RESURRECTION

On October 2, U.S. Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos announced the National Blue Ribbon Schools for 2018. There were a total of 349 schools nationwide and only 49 of them were private schools.

The National Blue Ribbon Schools award is the highest honor a U.S. school can achieve. Recognized as an "exemplary high-performing school," Resurrection ranks among the top 15% of the state's school assessment data. The data is what spurred the school's application. Upon recognizing their qualification, administrators were encouraged to take on the demanding application process.

With a strong tradition of rigorous academics and now delivering personalized learning at the elementary level, Resurrection was sure to be a solid contender on the academic front. However, Resurrection Principal Denise Grant attributes the award to their close-knit community.

"I think our school's secret lies in our community support," said Grant. "This is not just a school award – this is a community award. The support we receive from our parents, the parish, and the system has a great impact on what we can achieve."

Grant is grateful to the Resurrection parents who are always willing to help out and create a welcome environment for new families to the school.

"Blue Ribbon schools take a holistic approach to education, and this is critical to ensuring the success of their students in and beyond school," noted Ryan Wise, Director of the Iowa Department of Education, in a press release.

This holistic approach, or the idea of nurturing the whole child – mind, body and soul – is at the heart of the educational approach in all Holy Family schools. Students are encouraged to take a leadership role in their education, church and school community. Discipleship is fostered through faith-building experiences in every aspect of education, and activities with an intentional sense of purpose are woven into the curriculum, reinforcing the value of servant leadership in students.

Resurrection third-graders Trevor Lebeck and Claire Mier are creating time capsules, as part of a literacy activity. As a Blue Ribbon School, developing literacy skills and a love for reading is a priority at Resurrection.

"It is such a huge honor to receive this award, especially as a Catholic School and for the second time around," said Grant. "It confirms our educational practices and validates our commitment to excellence and high academic expectations for all students.

"I think this decision speaks to the hard work, dedication and effort our staff displays every day. We work as a team to create an environment of success; we support and encourage each other."

A member of the application team and teacher at Resurrection, Kathleen Konrardy, pinpoints the school's commitment to meeting each individual student's needs as the key to Resurrection's academic success. Teachers use data and set goals for individual student progress. She says they are willing and able to put in the extra time and effort to support students who are struggling. "We just do what has to be done," says Konrardy.

The school will be recognized at an awards ceremony in Washington, D.C., on Nov. 7 and 8. Please join us in congratulating the Resurrection community for the well-deserved credit as a Nation Blue Ribbon School!

ST. COLUMBKILLE

In recent years, the U.S. Department of Education has established another praise-worthy ribbon – the Green Ribbon Schools award – highlighting and encouraging the efforts of school communities engaged in outstanding environmental education and sustainability practices. This year, St. Columbkille Elementary was recognized nationally as one of the 46 U.S. Department of Education Green Ribbon Schools.

"We are thrilled to be recognized for the practices we have intentionally put into place and have now become second-nature to us," said St. Columbkille Principal Barb Roling.

For more than 10 years, St. Columbkille Elementary School has implemented programs and lessons involving recycling, composting, native and prairie plants, and the general reduction of waste. This commitment has created an atmosphere of respect for the environment and instills in students the mindset that the small things individuals do can make a difference in their world.

"We had all the necessary 'ingredients' to apply," said Roling. "And with the help of our AmeriCorps volunteer, Eve Dietrich, we were able to complete the in-depth application."

The greatest example of St. Columbkille's dedication to environmental education is the extensive use of the property as a learning tool, as showcased in the school's outdoor classroom, rain garden, native prairie plot, and a newly reconstructed prayer garden.

Roling believes that being recognized in this way highlights to the students, their parents and any new staff members joining the school that their environmental focus has a real impact. She says the award has renewed their energy and dedication to strengthening the school's mission to be good stewards of the resources God provides.

The Green Ribbon Schools award was officially presented in early October. We are proud of the care and effort the St. Columkille community dedicates to creating a brighter future for our students and our planet!
